Benefits Include: The Food Sovereignty Prize spotlights grassroots activists working for a more democratic food system. Honorees are recognized for promoting food sovereignty by:

- Addressing Racism and Creating Leadership Structures that Reflect Frontline Communities
- Defending Rights of Mother Earth and Defense of the Commons
- Immigrant Rights and Trade
- Fighting Against Land and Resource Grabs for Comprehensive Land Reform

The Food Sovereignty Prize was first awarded in 2009 as an alternative to the World Food Prize founded by “the father of the Green Revolution,” the late Norman Borlaug. While the World Food Prize emphasizes increased production through technology, the Food Sovereignty Prize champions solutions coming from those most impacted by the injustices of the global food system. In honoring those who are taking back their food systems, the Food Sovereignty Prize affirms that nothing short of the true democratization of our food system will enable us to end hunger once and for all.

The Food Sovereignty Prize was developed by the International Links Committee of the Community Food Security Coalition and is awarded by the US Food Sovereignty Alliance.

2018 Winners of the Food Sovereignty Prize:

- Organización Boricúa de Agricultura Ecológica de Puerto Rico
